Bay may seek $8M bond issue

BY MARY G. SEILEY

With fights over what major projects to start next -- and how to pay for them -- Bay St. Louis City Council is seriously considering an $8 million capital improvements bond issue that likely would spark a property tax increase.

One of the projects, a massive drainage improvement plan for the Hancock Heights-Cedar Point area, spawned such debate Tuesday night that Mayor Eddie Favre and Council President Tad Black stormed out of the meeting before its late-night adjournment.

Council voted against accepting a $257,700 bid for the project, rather than cut a number of other, smaller line items in this year's budget to help pay for it.

Black promised Wednesday, however, to be the swing vote that would authorize that project, if an acceptable way of paying for it is adopted.

Residents of a several-hundred-acre area known as Hancock Heights and Cedar Point have been to City Council repeatedly over the past several years urging some relief to drainage problems. That drainage project and four others are included in a proposed bond issue financing package that also covers improvements to the sewer, water and gas system, and construction of a new senior citizens center, sidewalks and bikeways.

In Hancock Heights, engineering plans call for construction of a major outfall ditch running parallel to Dunbar Avenue, channeling thousands of gallons of runoff through lakes on Casino Magic's golf course, through Lake Serpentine, and into the Bay of St. Louis.

But City Council had budgeted only $150,000 for the project and received a low bid of almost $260,000 from Bruce Ladner of Gulfport.

With the recommendation of the mayor behind him, council member Charles Scianna made

Supervisors to renovate Kiln building

BY ED LEPOMA

Supervisors have solved one public building dilemma, and have quickened their search for a site for a juvenile detention center in Hancock County.

The Board unanimously approved plans to go ahead and renovate a building previous supervisors had already purchased for administrative offices off Hwy. 603 for the Hancock County School District.

But in their regular monthly meeting Monday, a large group of merchants and residents said they opposed any plans to house juveniles in the old post office building in downtown Bay St. Louis.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson told those who came to protest, "You'll complain even louder when the juveniles we now have to turn loose break into your homes or businesses."

Since they took office last Jan. 3, the new Board of Supervisors has been wrangling over

Bay to increase recycling service

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis residents have a new avenue to get rid of junk mail, shoe boxes, magazines, catalogs and such -- recycling.

Beginning immediately, the curbside recycling program will include collection of such "mixed paper," City Council was told Tuesday night.

The expanded service comes at no additional cost to the city, said Larry Keher, director of the recycling program. Mixed paper includes magazines and catalogs; writing, paper, junk mail and envelopes, cereal, tissue and shoe boxes, office and school paper, telephone books and paper bags.

The service has been collecting newspapers, glass and plastic containers for several years.

Keher also said other changes are in store for the program -- collection dates are changing.

Collections now taken on Monday will be picked up on Tuesdays. That goes into effect after the Monday, April 8 collection.

Areas currently collected on Tuesday or Wednesday will remain on the same days, as well as those collected on Thursday east of Washington Street.

Bins belonging to residents living on or east of Washington will be collected on Wednesdays, beginning April 11.

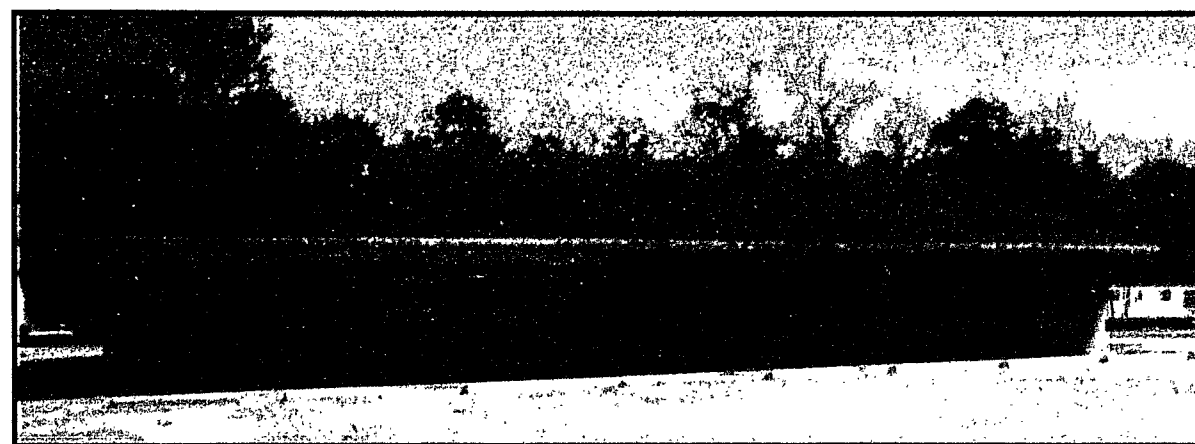

Areas now collected on Fridays will be collected on Thursdays, beginning Friday, April 12.

Keher's third announcement concerned plans for a drop-off recycling center for Bay St. Louis. Keher said he hasn't found the right location for that facility yet, but it will be announced soon.

Child abuse prevention

April has been designated nationally as Child Abuse Prevention Month, and the blue ribbon has been widely recognized as a national symbol of child abuse awareness. Monday the Hancock County Board of Supervisors issued a proclamation proclaiming April as Child Abuse Prevention Month. Tanya Barrett, left parent aide; and Kat Fitzpatrick, volunteer coordinator for the Family Child Center, on a windy Monday morning tie a blue ribbon on the Hancock County Courthouse. The Family Child Center was founded by the South Mississippi Exchange Clubs and is an agency of the United Way. (Echo staff photo by Ellis C. Cuevas)

School District offices

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has amended its budget in order to go forward with transforming this 4,000-square foot building on Hwys. 603 and 43 into new administrative offices for the Hancock County School District. The $119,900 project may be completed by next September. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

Landfill issue heating up

BY ED LEPOMA

Push has come to shove in the battle to open at least a 10-acre landfill in the rural Standard Community. In reality, two deadlines are looming on the horizon.

The Hancock County Solid Waste District on Wednesday gave supervisors until its April 16th meeting to accept a compromise offered to them last February.

And, Trans-American Waste

Inc., of Mobile, which now operates the 40-acre rubbish site at Standard, says it might begin charging the county for operating the rubbish site or it might pull out of the deal altogether if Standard is abandoned as at least a temporary site for a county landfill.

Without actually passing a resolution of their intent to go forward with Standard, representatives of the Mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland said they intend to open a landfill at Standard, even if supervisors opt to pull out of the interlocal agreement that created the Solid Waste district.

Businessman Tommy Kidd, who represents Waveland Mayor John Mason, said he was instructed by the mayor and prepared "to do whatever we have to do to get this moving."

And, Les Fillingame, who

Beach, adult entertainment, tower heights, concerns Bay

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis City Council put the public on notice Tuesday they plan to pass ordinances regulating adult entertainment facilities and the height of transmission towers.

Council also demanded more answers from officials responsible for installing the new sand beach, and indicated they want an in-person visit from owners of a controversial tract of land adjoining Casino Magic.

Council has had a sample adult entertainment ordinance under study for several weeks, legislation adopted in Pinnellas County, Fla.

Other area jurisdictions either have taken action on similar ordinances, or have such regulations under study, in hopes of averting an influx of adult entertainment establishments.

But there are significant legal points to ponder, council has been advised, before putting such an ordinance into effect. While the study continues, council adopted a statement of "intent" to adopt such an ordinance.

Council also is expecting to adopt an ordinance restricting the height of transmission towers in certain areas of the city. Current zoning laws limit heights of construction in residential zones to 35 feet, but that rule doesn't apply to transmission towers.

Council has expressed dismay with the visual impact of a cellular telephone transmission tower recently constructed near the depot. They passed a notice of intent that a new restriction will be imposed on such construction.

In other business, council met Tuesday with Marty Dove, who supervised the sand beach project for the Brown and Mitchell engineering firm.

The city is withholding final payment to that firm, and to contractors as well, citing dissatisfaction with drainage that has left the beach puddled with standing water.

Dove said portions of Harrison and Hancock County beaches have similar problems, caused by runoff. He suggested the city could install perforated drainage pipes in some spots to see if it would eliminate the problem.

Pass stops strip clubs

BY ED LEPOMA

With little comment, Pass Christian passed an ordinance Tuesday night aimed at keeping strip clubs out of city limits, and another that would eventually subject all city employees to random alcohol and drug testing.

The action by the Board of Aldermen was taken at the request of Mayor Billy McDonald, who had asked city attorney Malcolm Jones to draft both ordinances.

Jones told the Board the adult entertainment legislation basically tracks laws already in effect in Long Beach and Gulfport.

It would prohibit displays of male or female nudity and the showing of any graphic representation of nudity on premises where light wine and beer is sold.

It would also outlaw male or female dancers from touching customers or another employee or enticing customers to touch them for the purpose of soliciting a tip, donation or gratuity.

Jones said the city doesn't have the power to ban such entertainment in establishments where hard alcohol is served. That power is the authority of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Division Commission, which issues the liquor licenses, he said.

The city attorney also stressed that the new law "was not an attempt to zone."

"There may be specific areas (in the future) where adult entertainment districts could be established," (if desired), Jones said.

The ordinance passed unanimously with no comment from the five Board of Aldermen or McDonald.

The alcohol and drug-testing legislation was also passed unanimously at McDonald's urging, although city policemen are already subjected to random testing.

Jones told Aldermen they "might want to think about" the random testing part of the ordinance, since it would impact the city's budget. It would require testing city employees at least once a year, and reserve police officers once every three years.

EYE CARE

by Allen J. Koskan, M.D.

POTENTIAL VISION WITHOUT GLASSES

Any person with mild to moderate nearsightedness who holds onto the thought of a future without glasses will be interested in refractive procedures.

The approved procedures make use of diamond and/or laser technology to alter the surface of the cornea. Altering the clear part of the front of the eye in this manner permits light to focus properly on the retina in the back of the eye.

Otherwise, the myopic eye focuses light in front of the retina to cause blurred vision. In most cases the eyes with mild to moderate nearsightedness treated by refractive procedures are corrected to 20/40 or better.

Call our office today for a complimentary evaluation to determine if you are a candidate for refractive procedure.

The development and refinement of lens manufacturing can be traced through many centuries.

KOSKAN EYE CLINIC keeps current with the latest in lens and eye care developments and offers an extensive eyewear selection of fashion frames, sunwear and children's eyewear.

Call us at 466-5201 to schedule your eye exam. Our exams include thorough inspection of the internal and external parts of the eyes, measurements of visual acuity, testing of eye muscle movements, screening of peripheral visual fields and glaucoma and cataract testing.

We treat dry eye syndrome and specialize in the treatment of medical and surgically related eye problems. Our office is conveniently located at Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, MS.

Enjoy some eggs-traordinary Easter fun

Halloween has pumpkins, Christmas has trees, and Easter has, well, eggs. Decorated eggs may not be on the same scale as the Great Pumpkin or a festively trimmed New England fir tree. But for the daring, the traditional Easter activity is an "eggeptional" excuse to let creative juices flow.

In fact, decorating eggs is a great way to nurture children's artistic skills, says Charles Waller, a University of Mississippi School of Education graduate student and student teacher in the Oxford Public School System.

"Many of us grew up using store-bought dye kits, but most of what is needed to create beautiful Easter eggs is right in our homes," said Waller, who has taken classes in the Ole Miss Department of Art.

While most decorating ideas are perfectly harmless and don't require sharp objects or dangerous chemicals, Waller suggests some adult supervision. Plus, he says, "Even an adult can learn a thing or two about having fun, and decorating Easter eggs can be a great activity for families or groups of adults and children."

For those who want to add a little spice to their Easter eggs, Waller offers these suggestions:

• Don't just dip. Use acrylic paints or watercolors mixed with dyes or food coloring to create pictures, designs and interesting effects. Small children can use markers to make unique designs. And for sparkle, don't forget sequins, confetti, glitter or that single earring or old jewelry that can be glued to the egg's dry surface or layered over paints and dyes.

• Think like Doctor Doo-Little. Make up an egg to look like your favorite animal or family pet. Eggs first can be painted or dyed, and then glue fabric, felt, paper, beads, pipe cleaners, and pompons to the surface to make dogs, cats, rabbits, etc.

• Now you've blown it. Blowing the raw egg out of a shell requires supervision for children, and even adults should take precautions to avoid salmonella poisoning. When done properly and carefully, however, blown eggs can be used in many attractive ways.

With a needle, gently pierce a hole about the size of a grain of rice into both ends of the raw egg at room temperature. Make sure the yolk is broken. Stand over a bowl or sink and blow hard into one end to empty the contents.

Rinse well and allow to dry. Proceed to decorate with dye, ribbon, decorative braid, colored tissue paper, paint, beads, etc. When stored properly, blown eggs can last for many Easeters.

• Where do eggs come from? From Easter trees, of course. Paint a small tree or tree limbs white and place securely in a weighted pot. Decorate with pastel ribbons, Easter ornaments, lights (they're not just for Christmas), and plastic or blown eggs.

• Dye for these eggs. If you feel compelled to color your eggs with commercial dyes or food coloring, dye the light colors first, then the darker colors. Attractive layered effects and stripes can be achieved using this method.

First Missionary fish fry

First Missionary Baptist Church, Sycamore and Third streets, Bay St. Louis, will have a fish fry, sponsored by the Youth Department, April 5, 10:30-2 p.m. for a $3.50 donation.

St. Thomas services

St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Diamondhead, will have Maundy Thursday services at 5:30 p.m. Jerry Reshew, lay reader of the Diamondhead Hebrew Congregation, will celebrate a joint Seder Supper in Johnson Hall at St. Thomas.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Once again we are faced with a time change this weekend.

So, on Saturday night when you turn in, you need to advance your clock ahead one hour.

I know there are those out there waiting for me to stumble on which way to go with the clock, but hopefully I still remember a good example given by a good friend many years ago.

You 'spring forward' and 'fall backward.'

I wonder how many will be arriving for church and hour late on Sunday.

Sunday is Easter, and the Hancock County Community Easter Sunrise Service will once again be held at Christ Episcopal Church, South Beach Boulevard, 6:30 a.m.

It is my understanding that it has been assured by city officials that a spraying for gnats will be done before services.

This special Sunrise Service is sponsored by the Ministerial Association and Hancock County Emergency Relief.

Refreshments will follow the service, compliments of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

The special service will be conducted by ministers of the area with the Easter message being delivered by Rev. Vernon Knight, pastor of Lutheran Church of the Pines.

The service is open to the public. Everyone is invited and urged to attend.

The service will be moved indoors in the event of rain.

It is hard to comprehend that parents would not train their children not to damage property of others.

Case in point is the restoration project of the old L&N Depot in Bay St. Louis.

I feel the culprits who are breaking the windows, tearing down the doors, breaking out the lights and whatever other vandalism, should be apprehended and pay the price.

If they are kids, and I do not care how young they are, parents should be held responsible to pay for the damages.

It is coming to a time in this nation when parents need to be responsible for the actions of their children, just as they need to be responsible for their own actions.

We need to wake up and take responsibility, no matter who or what age we are.

Just think about it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Diamondhead resident felt photo and cutlines misleading

Dear Editor:

The picture on the front page of The Sea Coast Echo (Thursday, March 28) gave the impression that the American Legion National Commander Daniel A. Ludwig came to the Mississippi Coast with the express purpose of visiting the Bay St. Louis Post 139.

The fact is, Commander Ludwig came to honor and to present awards to five 50-year members of American Legion Post 77 in Waveland.

After the inspiring presentation, a party followed with great food, drinks and a dance.

I had hoped The Sea Coast Echo would have given some recognition to this proud celebration.

I congratulate all five 50-year legionnaires of Post 77, especially my uncle, Emile Malandra of Waveland.

Sincerely,
Patricia Reeb

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Tax the tourist

That's the scheme many cash-strapped local governments are using to fund pet projects ranging from ball parks to visitors centers.

The idea is to add a percentage to restaurant and motel sales taxes. That way, the thinking goes, the locals won't have to cough up for projects that probably wouldn't stand a ghost of a chance at the polls.

It seems harmless enough, but the reality is the local citizenry ends up with the bill.

Restaurants are frequented by locals more than "out of towners." The cash register tax key rings up an extra cent or so every time a time-rushed mother feeds her brood McDonald's Happy Meals, and when the downtown worker gets a Blue Plate special from the cafe, the change shrinks.

The local softball team will pitch some extra coins when they gather for an after-the-game pizza, and the motel will add dollars to the wedding reception or high school banquet bill.

But the political spin machines don't tell that tale.

A tourist tax?

Not unless you put on a pair of flip-flops, a silly shirt and hat and declare yourself a visitor in your own hometown.

FROM THE STATE AUDITOR

SCHOOLS

Q. Are school districts exempt from the imposition of a tax on royalties they receive from the production of oil and gas from 16th section land?

A. School districts would not be subject to the privilege tax listed in Section 27-25-503 or 27-25-701. (Attorney General's opinion to Kuehnle dated Dec. 6, 1995)

Q. May the legislature appropriate funds to a private, non-profit, charitable school which admits students without regard to any discriminatory standards?

A. Article 8 Section 208 of the constitution prohibits the grant of a gratuity to a private school because such schools are not a part of the free public schools. (Attorney General's opinion to Capps dated Dec. 13, 1995)

Q. May the city and the school district enter into an Interlocal Agreement for the provision of printing services by the school district to the city?

A. Section 37-7-301(dd) for school districts and Section 21-17-5 for municipalities provide specific authority for the school district and the city to enter into the Interlocal Agreement for the provision of printing services by the school district of the city, provided adequate consideration is received in return. (Attorney General's opinion to Cochran dated Dec. 20, 1995)

Q. May school districts enter into collective bargaining agreements with its employees?

A. State statutes do not give school districts any authority either direct or implied to enter into formal collective bargaining agreements with public employees. (Attorney General's opinion to Johnson dated Dec. 20, 1995)

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

By Representative J.P. Compretta

A Weekly Summary

Submitted by Representative J. P. Compretta

The focus was on conference committees and bill-signings in the past week as the 1996 legislative session neared completion with efforts continuing to hammer out differences between the House and Senate on a stack of appropriation bills, proposed changes in Implied Consent laws, a measure to authorize "teen courts" in certain counties and other key issues.

A determined move was underway to complete work on more than 200 bills passed earlier by the two chambers and sent to six-member conference committees to try to resolve differences between House and Senate versions. It's not unusual for many bills to go to conference in the last days of the session.

The Governor, as expected, vetoed a bill to make various changes in the procedures for proposing a constitutional amendment by the initiative process, including making it unlawful to attempt to obtain a signature on a petition by intentionally misleading a person as to the substance or effect of the petition.

A compromise was worked out in early negotiations on one of the House-Senate differences in regard to the appropriation bills. The House had decided in February to insert a new provision in each of the funding measures to try to get a better handle on money spent by various agencies on contracts with private firms or individuals for professional services.

But, under the compromise plan, a slightly modified version of the House language was to be placed in the appropriation bills for 12 of the larger agencies and omitted from other budget bills.

Among departments that still would have to file reports on private contracts were Education, Transportation, Corrections, Human Services, Finance and Administration, Economic and Community Development, the Personnel Board and the Gaming Commission.

Other measures signed recently by the Governor include bills to expand the Alcohol Boating Safety Act to include public rivers and streams under state jurisdiction; allow the Department of Transportation to employ security officers or hire private security guards to protect hospital-ity stations and other property under the agency's jurisdiction; and authorize an education and research program to assist in promoting the propane gas industry, if approved by a vote of propane dealers. And there have been numerous others.

The House also approved a concurrent resolution endorsing a 10-point "Bill of Rights and Responsibilities for Learning," stressing safety, discipline and high academic standards.

Among other things, the resolution declares that all students and school staff have a right to schools that are safe, orderly and free of drugs; have clear discipline codes; clear and rigorous academic standards; necessary instruction materials; and schools where teachers know their subject matter and how to teach it.

In addition, the resolution declares that students and school staff "have a right to be supported by parents, the community, public officials and businesses in their efforts to uphold high standards of conduct and achievement."

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Let social security recipients work

When the Senate takes up legislation to raise the government's borrowing authority, it will add a long overdue provision to relax the earnings limit on people who receive social security benefits.

The social security provision would gradually increase the amount of wages a senior citizen may earn without losing benefits. The limit would rise from $11,520 to $14,000 this year and to $30,000 by the year 2002.

Certain older Americans currently lose $1 in social security benefits for every $3 they earn above that $11,520. Keep in mind this is only applicable to senior citizens retired in the 65 to 69 year age group. There is no earning limit for those over 70 years.

No American should be discouraged from working. Unfortunately, one group in the United States is severely penalized for attempting to be financially independent and making ends meet.

When seniors aged 65-69 years work in order to pay for the high costs of health care, pharmaceutical needs, and housing — just for starters, they are penalized more than any other group in our society.

For the federal government to determine they should be penalized just because they are over 64 or under 70, is the height of arrogance by our bureaucracy.

The earned income limit was devised in the 1930s when encouraging the elderly to leave the workplace was seen as a positive act, designed to increase job opportunities for younger workers coming out of the depression. Today, with our shrinking labor force, such a policy is absurd. We need the skills, wisdom and experience of our older workers.

According to the Labor Department, the baby boom generation will be in their retirement years between the years 2000 and 2010. With fewer babies being born to replace them, our nation is facing a severe labor shortage. The skills and expertise of older workers are desperately needed.

I strongly support allowing senior citizens to work without penalty which is why last year I introduced the Older Americans Freedom to Work Act. My bill would totally remove the limitation on the amount of outside income which social security beneficiaries who have reached retirement age may earn without incurring a reduction in benefits.

While I am very pleased that the Senate is finally easing the burden on working social security beneficiaries, I believe it should be lifted altogether.

Senior Americans have a wealth of expertise gained through 30 to 40 years of productivity in the work place. Companies hiring seniors note their strong work ethic, punctuality and flexibility.

Their participation in the workforce can spur billions of dollars in our annual output of goods and services. To remain competitive in the global marketplace, we must reform our labor laws to meet the challenges of the future.

We must end this penalty against older Americans who work. There must be no barriers to their full participation in our country's future.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

"If we can allow the reality of Easter to mold the other 365 days of this year;

If we can allow the hope which flows from Easter to sustain us in periods of crisis and temptation;

If we can allow the love which led our Lord to walk unflinchingly into the jaws of death to flow through our lives;

If we can allow faith in this Risen one to fill us with the courage needed to face all of life with a twinkle in our eyes;

Then we will have discovered the central message which God brought to us in Christ.

That message is that "nothing can separate us — I repeat, nothing can separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

—Dr. Paul H. Richards
The Crier, April 1996

MY THOUGHTS

There is a wonderful sparkle of spring in the air,

There is a feeling of promise and hope everywhere.

May springtime surround you with joys great and small, and bring you your loveliest Easter of all.

Wishing you all a blessed and happy one.

Gulf Coast gaming revenues stabilized in 1995

Gaming revenues showed dramatic growth from 1992 to 1994 along the Mississippi Gulf Coast but stabilized in 1995, according to a report presented Tuesday at an economic symposium.

According to a study compiled and presented by University of Southern Mississippi Professor Charles Cartee, monthly gross gaming revenues (money taken in versus money paid out) experienced a marked growth from 1992 until July of 1994 on the Coast, peaking at $72.1 million.

"Average monthly revenues were over $43.6 million in 1993, rose to $60.6 million in 1994 and averaged about $59.9 million in 1995, slightly below the 1994 monthly average," Cartee determined in a report presented to the second annual "Building the Coast: A development Financing Symposium" at Biloxi's Grand Casino Hotel.

"Nonetheless, a positive ripple effect on the Coast economy continues as unemployment rates remained basically below the state and national averages during 1995..." concluded Cartee, a professor in USM's Department of Marketing and Finance.

"Further, while gaming revenues have stabilized, two major properties are either being constructed or have announced plans for major investments," the report continues. "Existing properties have also announced major expenditures for new or additional hotel developments and related destination attraction amenities."

Consequently, the report predicted, "it is reasonable to assume that these construction and related expenditures will provide a large part of the economic catalyst during 1996" and "could easily provide the basis for the growth that will occur in 1997 and beyond."

Cartee also discovered:

— a mixed trend in hotel-motel sales for the three Gulf Coast counties between 1994 and 1995: rising by nearly 9 percent in Harrison County and by 18 percent in Jackson County, and falling by 14 percent in Hancock County.

— modest increases in restaurant sales: up 4.3 percent in Harrison County, less than 1 percent in Jackson County and nearly 13 percent in Hancock County.

— modest increases in total gross sales in Harrison and Jackson counties, a "noticeable drop" in Hancock county, with an overall rise of about 0.5 percent in the three counties.

— a 15 percent drop in real estate sales in 1995, after increasing steadily from 1992 to 1994, concluding: "The drop in residential sales tends to indicate that the market is more in balance at the moment and that the pent-up demand of the past two years has been satisfied."

— A 9.7 percent drop from 1994 to 1995 in tourism inquiries, which are tied to the type and amount of advertising being done;

— and a drop from 1994 to 1995 in boardings at the Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport from 119,906 to 113,397.

The one-day symposium is part of an effort by several leading business, civic, educational and public agencies to feature some of the Gulf Coast's foremost experts in economic analysis, real estate, economic development, banking and hospitality.

Cartee's presentation was to be the first edition of a USM "Economic Report," designed to provide an analysis of the economy of south Mississippi, and explore existing and future economic trends.

Symposium sponsors included the Coast Chamber of Commerce, Coast Business, the Harrison County Development Commission, Mississippi Power Co., USM Gulf Coast, Peoples Bank, South Trust Bank, the Harrison County Tourism Commission, Eaton & Cottrell and Latter & Blum nc./Realtors.

Holmes returns to Magic Dome

Event coordinator Les Bonano announced heavyweight Larry Holmes will be the feature of a six-bout card Tuesday, April 16 in the Magic Dome at Casino Magic, Bay St. Louis.

In the USA Network broadcast, Holmes' opponent will be New Orleans heavyweight Quinn Navarre (17-3-1 12 KO's). Navarre is no stranger to the Gulf Coast, since all of his professional bouts have taken place in Louisiana and Mississippi.

"Navarre will prove an exciting matchup for Holmes. This young man is presented with a must-win situation if he hopes to attain any stature within the heavyweight ranks," said Bonano.

The bout will mark Holmes' seventh ring appearance at Casino Magic since 1995. Holmes, whose career started in 1973, reigned as world champion for seven years and is undoubtedly still one of boxing's most durable and engaging figures.

With an impressive record of 63 wins, 5 losses, 0 draws and 41 KO's, his victories include wins over boxing greats such as Kenny Norton, Earnie Shavers, Gerry Cooney, Ray Mercer and Muhammad Ali.

Jan. 9 marked the return of big-time boxing to Galveston, Texas at Moody Arena. Holmes scored a knockout victory in the fourth round over the tough Curtis Sheppard. The knockout was especially impressive because it came via a short right cross, a punch that was not utilized by the younger Holmes.

The night's co-feature is defending champion Eric "Lil' E" Griffin from Lafayette, La., battling Miguel Angel Granados from Mexico City for the NABF title.

There will also be a strong undercard showcasing local talent, including welterweight Ronald Weaver of New Orleans, middleweight Chuck Mince of Metairie, La., and super featherweight, Damien Duquestrada of Avondale, La.

The first bout begins at 7 p.m. Doors open at 6 p.m. For ticket information, call 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, ext. 4145, or Ticketmaster at 1-800-488-5252. Tickets are also available 24 hours a day at the Players Club at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

Supers favor tourism tax

BY ED LEPOMA

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is on record favoring a proposed two percent tax to promote the area's tourist attractions, but details of a final bill are in the hands of state Rep. J.P. Compretta.

The proposed tax has undergone a metamorphosis since it was first proposed last February. It was proposed after the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association vowed to band together to promote a common goal.

Together, last August, they announced formation of the Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau, which would use proceeds from the special tax to advertise and promote Hancock County in national and regional publications and plan other promotional events.

As now proposed, a two percent tax would be levied on gross proceeds of hotels, motels, and bed and breakfast establishments. Exact estimates on what the tax would bring in weren't immediately available.

The tax would be automatically repealed within two years, unless the county decides to reinstate it and the legislature agrees to reenact it.

Originally, the millage was also supposed to be levied on local food and beverage operations and recreational vehicle parks, but after several objections, those businesses were exempted.

Supervisors, by a unanimous vote Monday, agreed to support the tax, after Board President Philip Moran questioned local businessman Bill Lady on the makeup of the nine-member board that would administer the funds generated by the levy. As now proposed, supervisors would appoint four members of the board, the Chamber of Commerce would name one representative, and Waveland and Bay St. Louis mayors would each appoint two members.

Moran also asked Lady to have Compretta fax to supervisors the latest draft of the measure.

Lady, who with his brother owns and operates the Holiday Inn in Waveland, serves as chairman of the Tourism Development Bureau. It's initial operating funds came from a $3,000 a-month contribution from Casino Magic, $1,500 each from the county Board of Supervisors and from the city of Bay St. Louis.

Peoples Bank has offered to donate free office space once the Bureau needs it.

In its regular monthly meeting, supervisors also heard a report from Willie Gavney, chief inspector with the Hancock County Planning Commission.

Gavney was asked to make a report to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in Atlanta on the status of 22 violations of federal flood plain regulations found in a county survey last June.

Structures cited were in River Jourdan Shores and Shoreline Park in unincorporated areas of the county. Some structures were found to be lower than elevation requirements. Others had enclosed areas below the raised structures in violation of the federal regulations. Some trailers, camper and recreation owners were cited because the trailers were not licensed, on wheels and ready to roll in an emergency, as required by federal law.

Gavney told supervisors he will report to FEMA that 95 percent of those cites were now in compliance. He said absentee ownership made it difficult to contact the remaining seven, but they have now been identified and told they must meet FEMA requirements.

Minutes after Gavney spoke, Danny Laird, who says he lives part-time and runs a business out of trailers at 116 Old Manhattan Street, claimed Gavney was, "loud, threatening and rude" and upset his wife the day before she was to have surgery when he came on the premises to inform him that he was in violation of the FEMA regulations.

Supervisors listened politely to Laird, who said they, and not FEMA, should dictate what people living in low-lying areas need to do or not do on their property.

Supervisors didn't respond to Laird, but County Attorney Gerald Gex said the regulations were federal mandates, and must be complied with in order for property owners to get flood insurance or other federal aid prior to and after natural disasters. He said supervisors can't supersede or waive the federal regulations.

Laird said realtors selling land in flood-prone areas should be made to disclose the FEMA requirements as part of their sales contracts.

He said he already has spent $140 on a flood elevation permit, and threatened, "my attorney will take appropriate action."

School districts gear up for summer meal program

BY TRACI BONNEY

There are few substitutes for a warm meal to comfort and energize a person.

For thousands of children, the Summer Feeding Program offers that warm meal.

Once administered by the federal government through local parks and recreation departments, the Summer Feeding Program now operates through public schools for 39 days in June and July.

Rhea Scafidi, food services director for the Hancock County School District, said, "This service used to be offered through park, church and other day camp programs, but there were problems in some cases with a lack of adequate storage and serving facilities, which left the way open for potential health and sanitation risks."

"Finally, someone in Washington realized that the program needed to be run by the experts, by those whose livelihood is feeding children, and that it should be operated in facilities that were equipped to handle food storage, preparation and service—in other words, school cafeterias."

By bringing the program into the schools, Scafidi added, the program became not only safer, but more effective because it offered central locations and opened the program up to children who might not have been able to attend a day camp for some reason.

"Yes, we do have day camps bring children to the schools so we can feed them lunch," she said, "but that's what this program is about, feeding children."

Judy Fletcher, food services director for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, agreed.

"The money is there," she said. "If we don't use it to feed hungry children in our community, it will be used somewhere else to feed hungry children."

Fletcher added, "From my experience, we do get a lot of children in here during the summer that I can tell would not get a nourishing meal if this program weren't available. It makes your heart feel good to see a child eating what for them is probably the only hot meal they'll get that day."

The Hancock district offers the program at Charles B. Murphy, Gulfview and Hancock North Central Elementary schools. The city district offers the program at Waveland Elementary and Bay Middle schools.

The five schools served a total of 34,682 lunches and 6,404 breakfasts in 1995, according to Fletcher and Scafidi.

Scafidi said that while a school district's eligibility for the Summer Feeding Program is based on free and reduced lunch statistics (as well as other factors), the summer program is not the same as the Child Nutrition Program that is run during the school year.

"I don't want parents to think they have to fill out eligibility paperwork to bring their children to the summer program," she stated. "We don't screen children for eligibility in the summer program. If a child shows up for lunch, he or she gets lunch."

The Hancock district has offered the summer program for 10 years; the city district has offered it for 11 years.

The Summer Feeding Program will run at all five sites from June 3 to July 26. The program will not be available on July 4.

At Waveland Elementary and Bay Middle schools, breakfast will be served 8-9 a.m. Monday-Friday. At all five schools, lunch will be offered 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m. on weekdays. Scafidi said the menus are traditional kids' menus.

"I've surveyed children in the district, and we try to structure the menus around foods they like, such as hot dogs, burgers, pizza, tacos," she explained. "These are usually the meals with the highest participation levels during the school year."

She added, "We do keep it nutritional by including vegetables, and serving desserts that often feature fresh fruit."

Cellular South sponsors sailing championships

Cellular South announced its major sponsorship of the 1996 U.S. Sailing National Youth Championships to be held in June at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club in Bay St. Louis.

In making the announcement, Cellular South Area Manager Keith White stated, "We are pleased to sponsor this premier racing event and salute Bay-Waveland Yacht Club as the host of the championships. We feel that sailing offers these young athletes a clean, safe and fun sport which incorporates an awareness and respect for the environment. It builds an immediate and real sense of worth that comes from being able to compete with the very best this country has to offer."

The U.S. Sailing National Youth Championship was established in 1973 and is the only open national youth championship. It is recognized in the sailing world as the "pinacle" for teenage sailboat racers. The event is open to any United States sailor under age 20 by application, but only 150 to 160 of the top junior sailors in the country are accepted. U.S. Sailing, the national authority, makes the selections based primarily on the entrants' sailing ability and experience.

The goal of the event is to provide world-class sailing competition with a strong educational foundation. Olympic level coaches run a two-day seminar. This is followed by four days of intense racing with evening replays and discussions of technique. The top finishers in each class will be invited to other national level events.

Cellular South Account Executive and member of the host club, Cary Trapani, stated, "This competition is the best offered to the youth of this country, and I am proud to be associated with the sponsor and the host of the championships."

Cellular South, Mississippi's largest cellular service provider, has been providing cellular service to the Mississippi Gulf Coast since 1988.

Waveland sculptor's works on display at library

The works of Waveland artist and sculptor Hamilton Guenard will be featured in a special exhibit during the month of April at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

The exhibit shows the evolution and scope of Guenard's talent and includes representative pieces in marble, copper, bronze and steel.

Born in New Orleans, and a resident of Waveland since 1953, Guenard is the great-grandson of artist Hortier Guenard, whose landscapes decorated many of the riverport's finer buildings.

A self-taught sculptor with no previous artistic accomplishment, Guenard's first bronze casting was "Zimara," a replica of his show-winning Afghan hound.

After his first piece was cast, Guenard began teaching himself the very complicated process of casting metal objects by a 4,000-year-old technique known as cure perdue or lost-wax casting.

Basically, the process consists of constructing in wax or a wax-resin combination of suitable thickness and forming a mold over the outside of the work to be cast. The wax is then drained or "lost," which is then left with a hollow space formerly occupied by the wax.

Into this space the molten metal is poured until it fills the void completely. After cooling, the mold is removed and the casting is finished with tools if necessary.

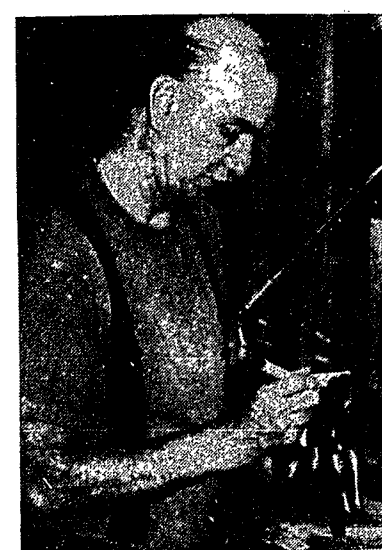

Cooper and brass have also been used by Guenard to create distinctive wall hangings. He uses a torch, heats the metal and cuts each component, which is then hammered into shape. Details are added with a chisel.

Then his sculpturing turned to creating fountains—one of these can be seen in Annie's Restaurant in Pass Christian. Not only has he produced items in his studio, but he has also been commissioned to do such things as making a gold leaf finial which graces the top of the steeple on the Main Street Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis.

Several of his copper relief sculptures have also been donated to the Lutheran Church of the Pines in Waveland in memory of his son, Hamilton J. Guenard.

Pieces in marble and steel are also on display, and the public is invited to view the exhibit Monday through Saturday during the month of April at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

For information call Janice Parrott or Mary Perkins at 467-5282.

Governor proclaims April Salute to Industry Month

Noting the importance of Mississippi industry to the state's economy and well-being, Governor Kirk Fordice has declared April as "Salute to Industry Month."

"Mississippi's business and industry is the foundation of the state's economy that provides jobs for its citizens, economic growth for its communities, and tax revenues for state and local governments," Gov. Fordice states in the proclamation.

"I encourage citizens to join with me in expressing our appreciation to business and industry in our state for its many contributions to our past, present, and future prosperity."

The Mississippi Department of Economic and Community Development's 1995 New and Existing Facility Report lists approximately 553 announced expansions and locations by Mississippi industries in 1995 that will create an estimated 20,630 jobs and involve a ca-tal investment of more than $1.73 billion.

During the year companies announced the location of 74 new facilities, valued at $407.5 million in investment and creating 9,623 jobs.

Salute to Industry Month is an annual April event in which communities across the state recognize business and industry's contributions locally and to the state overall with special events and awards presentations.

Last minute tax filing:

There is still time and help for you

Q. I usually prepare my own taxes. However, this year I waited later than usual. I also need additional forms that did not come in my tax package and have a few questions about my taxes. How can I get forms and answers to my questions quickly? Is it better to just file for an extension? If I file for an extension, will that make me more likely to get audited?

A. There are several places you can get copies of the standard forms including local libraries and post offices. If you are elderly or have a modest income and don't have an unusual or complicated tax situation you can get forms, answers to questions and free tax preparation.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) sponsor free tax preparation services at several sites along the Coast.

The programs are AARP/Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TCE) and Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA).

Volunteer tax preparers are located at libraries, community centers, and military installations. Richard Brock at the Keesler Legal office (377-3510) and Lora Braun at the Gulfport Navy Family Support office (871-2913) coordinate the military programs. Call ahead to check times and dates. Some sites are busier than others but many of the sites will have your taxes prepared and checked that day with very little

Leadership applications

Applications are now being accepted for persons interested in becoming members of the Leadership Gulf Coast class of 1996 sponsored by the Mississippi Gulf Coast Chamber of Commerce. To qualify, applicants must live, work or have significant influence and interest in Harrison County at the time the application is filed.

The purpose of the program is to identify and help develop the community leadership of the Mississippi Gulf Coast; provide educational, networking and relationship-building opportunities for potential new leaders; and maintain a pool of current and potential community leaders.

A maximum of 35 individuals representing the business and professional community and the various segments of the community at large will be chosen to participate in the program. If selected, participants will attend seven one-day sessions focusing on government, military, human relations, economics, health and the quality of life.

The deadline for submitting an application to Leadership Gulf Coast is the close of business on June 6. An application may be obtained from the Chamber office by calling (601) 863-2933.

These sites are not equipped to handle extremely complicated forms. Other resources include the IRS office on Oak Lane just south of Hwy. 49 Kmart in Gulfport. This time of year, plan for a long wait.

It is not too late to go to a paid preparer, unless you are unable to get necessary business or financial information. Tax preparation services like H&T Block say they will be open until the last customer leaves on April 15, through I would not suggest waiting till then. They will have the needed forms on hand.

If you have a computer, there are programs that make tax preparation quick and easy. If your computer has a modem, you can file electronically directly to the IRS. Refer to last Monday's Your Money page for Internet addresses with tax forms and assistance.

Use Form 4868 to file an extension. The form is due by April 15, 1996 for most taxpayers. You are not eligible to file an extension if you want the IRS to figure your tax or you are under a court order to file by the regular date. You must show an estimate of tax liability and the extension of time to file does not mean an extension of time to pay. Make an estimate of taxes due and sent your payment.

"Filing an extension is not an audit trigger, per se," according to Randal Turner, CPA. In fact, some reports indicate that those who file an extension may be a little less likely to be audited.

Those "red flags" that can make your return more likely to be audited are "deductions above the norm, matching documents (for instance, you forgot a source of income that was reported to the IRS), and extremely high income and complex tax returns."

Q. I sold some mutual funds this year. I reinvest earnings and have paid some tax on capital gains reported to me by the mutual fund company in past years. How are those "capital gain distributions" handled when I figure my taxes?

A. In order to prevent oversteating your gain on the mutual fund shares, you must add them back to your cost basis. For instance, if you originally paid $1,000 for the mutual fund shares then reinvested taxable distributions totaling $100, your cost basis is now $1,100. If you don't add back distributions which have already been taxed, you overstate your gain and overpay taxes.

He recommended the Board implement the parts of the ordinance which would require alcohol and drug testing as a requirement before employment, and another that would require testing of city employees involved in vehicular or other work-related accidents.

Jones said the random testing would require the city to set up an Employee Assistance Program Director to handle the testing, but it could be handled by contracting an individual laboratory to conduct the tests.

"You might want to think about it. I have no idea what it might cost," said Jones.

But, Police Chief John Dubuison said his department randomly tests policemen, and the charge amounts to about $80 per person. He said he didn't think the cost to the city "would be prohibitive."

Ward One Aldermen Jeff Emerson made the motion to pass the entire ordinance, including the random testing provision, "and let them (city employees) worry about whether we're going to do it."

At the start of the meeting, the Mayor and Aldermen heard a request from Gulfport businessman Francis Collins.

Collins requested a workshop session with them to discuss the possibility of his purchasing and rehabilitating the deteriorating and vacated public housing units on two tracts of land along North Street.

The City Planning Commission recently asked the Mayor to put pressure on the Mississippi Housing Authority to demolish the units. The Department of Housing and Urban Development had let a contract for their renovation, but backed off, saying it would be too costly to restore them.

The two tracts of land are now for sale, and if no one comes forward to purchase them, HUD will move to demolish them.

Collins said he has built Forrest Heights, a 200-unit complex off Miss. 49 north of Gulfport, which provides homeownership for low and moderate income tenants.

He said he toured the units and thought "they haven't been vandalized too much" and could be renovated as rental housing.

Part of the units are in Ward One Alderman Michael Antoine's boundaries and another part is in Ward 2 Alderman Margaret Jean Kalif's jurisdiction.

Antoine said, "Speaking from the heart, I would like to see them torn down." He said, since they were opened, the tenants of the units had created problems with the neighbors, and opening them up again, "may be another headache for the city."

He said he thought the land could be put to better use, since it is located in close proximity to the city's Industrial Park.

Antoine motioned to go forward with plans to demolish the units (once HUD approves), and his motion was seconded by Ward 4 Aldermen Ronnie Bodenschatz.

Bodenschatz said the city planning commission recommended the demolition after the Housing Authority deemed it wasn't economically feasible to renovate them. She said the area was also subjected to flooding.

The motion failed 2-3, and Kalif made a substitute motion that will allow Collins to go before the planning commission with his proposal.

She said the units were "an eyesore and a hazard. I don't know how cost-effective it would be to you."

She told Collins, "You're catching me cold," but she thought his proposal should be considered.

At-large Aldermen Gene

Rogers said the planning commission should not only consider whether the renovation is feasible, "but is it something we need, and is it the best use of the land." He recommended that Collins have some type of architectural concept before going to the planning commission.

Rogers and Emerson joined in supporting Kalif's motion. Antoine and Bodenschatz voted against.

In other business, the Board passed a resolution at the request of James V. Cerra to name the new bridge on Henderson Avenue over the Wolf River for District 3 Supervisor David LaRosa in recognition of his contributions to Pass Christian.

The request will be forwarded to the Harrison County Board of Supervisors, which has the authority to honor LaRosa, if desired.

Waste

serves as chairman of the District and represents Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre, warned, "the whole county, including the taxpayers in the cities are going to pay the price" for the supervisors failure to compromise on opening Standard.

"We are going to be without a rubbish site in three months. Then, where are the people going to take their tree limbs and construction debris, and what will they be charged," asked Fillingame.

The comments put District 3 Supervisor Lisa Cowand in an awkward position.

On the one hand, she represents supervisors on the District's three-member board. She said her "gut feeling was supervisors were not interested in opening Standard."

She said supervisors had looked at two or three areas in the buffer zone that might be suitable for a rubbish site and landfill, and might make some decision on a location in "two to three weeks."

Moreover, Cowand said, she's not sure whether the Hancock School District would sell supervisors the 90 acres of Section 16 land remaining in Standard adjacent to the rubbish site that has been proposed for a county landfill.

The Board asked Cowand to see if supervisors would accept a compromise plan to buy the 90 acres at Standard; open up a 10-acre cell for a landfill and close it once land is found and a permit is granted for one in the buffer zone. The District proposes to use the remaining 80 acres for a rubbish site.

Trans-American took over operations of the rubbish site at Standard last September and has the 20-year contract to operate the landfill.

The county has been notified by the State Department of Environmental Quality that it must close the rubbish site by June 1 because it will be at capacity.

The firm has been operating the facility at not cost to the county, but claims it is losing $15,000 a month, awaiting a decision on Standard.

In a letter to Fillingame, Trans-American said the indecisiveness over proceeding at Standard has affected its chances of contracting with other communities to haul their solid waste into Standard.

Cowand will bring the compromise to supervisors on April 16. She might also ask them if they wish to withdraw from the inter-local agreement that created the Solid Waste District, and take complete charge of the county's future disposal plans.

The Solid Waste District has scheduled a special meeting April 17 to consider action once supervisors reach some decision on Standard at their April 16 meeting.

DeLisle's ITBS scores third in Mississippi

BY TRACI BONNEY

DeLisle Elementary students scored third highest in the state this school year on an annual achievement test.

The recently released scores for the Iowa Test of Basic Skills (ITBS) show that Pass Christian students are showing overall improvements in reading, math and language skills. The test, which replaced the Stanford Achievement Test, is administered in October to students in grades four through nine.

Students in DeLisle Elementary's fourth grade ranked third in the state behind Power APAC in Jackson and D.T. Cox Elementary in Pontotoc.

School principal Clementine Williams said she was very proud of the students' showing.

"The children and their teachers worked very hard in preparing for this," she said. "Less than 10 percent of the students scored in the lower 25th percentile. The majority of the students scored in the 50 to 70 percentile range."

Even though Pass Christian didn't rank in the state's top five schools at the other grade levels, the scores did increase in all grades except sixth.

The battery scores, which are a summary of the scores in the three individual categories, are as follows:

Grade 4 — 47.0 in 1994, 52.2 in 1995;

Grade 5 — 44.6 in 1994, 53.1 in 1995;

Grade 6 — 50.0 in 1994, 46.3 in 1995;

Grade 7 — 46.8 in 1994, 52.2 in 1995;

Grade 8 — 49.7 in 1994, 54.0 in 1995;

Grade 9 — 45.2 in 1994, 47.6 in 1995.

No results were available for DeLisle Elementary alone, which is one of two elementary schools in the Pass Christian municipal school district.

DeLisle Elementary School and the Pass Christian district received statewide attention with their scores last month when the Jackson Clarion-Ledger newspaper published the results of ITBS testing in schools across the Coast.

Concerns

Mayor Eddie Favre said a lack of maintenance by county beach crews is a substantial portion of the problem -- grading equipment has been dispatched to the city beach area only once since the berm was installed last year.

Regular grading, officials say, will turn the sand and enable it to dry out.

"We're concerned about failure of the project. The project is not doing what we thought it would do," said council member James Thriffiley. "I'm not happy with the outcome of this project."

He added that one section of the beach in front of St. Stanislaus has enough water to sustain fishing activity. And, he said, there are areas of silting at the end of drain pipes that could cause a major backup of runoff elsewhere in the city.

Thriffiley said while the city doesn't want to go to court to resolve the issue, it is willing to do so if necessary.

Council agreed to install test pipes as Dove suggested, and to ask project engineer William Mitchell to meet with council.

Meanwhile, council also wants to meet with representatives of Gaming Corporation of America to hear an update on plans for a major tract of Cedar Point land once proposed as a casino site.

Attention has focused on that property as council continues to debate adoption of a comprehensive plan for the city. That plan will be the basis for zoning all the area the city annexed earlier this decade, including Casino Magic's Bay Cove properties.

The lands were subject to pre-annexation agreements that would allow -- and encourage -- casinos and related developments. In the face of some public opposition to more casinos, however, some council members want to ignore those pacts and designate the still-vacant properties for residential use only.

The land at issue has been the subject of complex, protracted litigation in Chancery Court. Several related lawsuits are expected to be heard in mid-summer.

a motion to accept the bid, and search in the budget for other programs to cut, covering the gap. Favre said if the administration's proposed bond issue is approved, the cut items will be restored to the major spending plan.

But Black balked when Favre said in the meantime some trimming would come at the expense scheduled paving within the city. Black and council members James Thriffley and Tom Favre voted against proceeding with the drainage project.

That action infuriated Scianna, who said his district's residents are treated like "the step children of Bay St. Louis." He said he was "very, very, disappointed" with council's action, and asked the mayor to veto it. Black said the mayor couldn't veto a motion that didn't pass.

The mayor and Municipal Clerk Kay Johnson left the meeting at that point, only to reappear with a specific list of projects that could be cut in order to finance the Hancock Heights drainage project.

In addition, Favre and Johnson's proposed budget revisions would furnish some $78,000 to add to the existing sports field construction project, providing new restroom facilities for the seven-field complex off Athletic Drive.

Specifically, the administration suggested eliminating purchase of a new dumptruck ($50,000); taking $30,000 from renovations to the Valena C. Jones complex; eliminating construction of a comfort station ($40,000); and cutting property acquisition funding from $125,000 to $55,000.

That plan, the mayor noted, would leave $200,000 in the budget for upcoming resurfacing projects in the city, and finance the drainage project as well.

Rutherford made a motion to approve that plan, seconded by Scianna. But Thriffley balked at the notion of having one of his favorite projects eliminated: the comfort station. He's been pushing for that facility for several years, saying it will attract tour buses -- and money from the tourists -- to the city.

"The drainage project is fine. I'm not attacking the project, but we need to put our priorities in shape," he said.

Thriffley argued that a $78,000 expenditure for restrooms at the ballfields is "not realistic," and contended his comfort station project would cost $25,000, not $40,000.

Scianna, meanwhile, pointed to some expenses he's supported for drainage work in Black's district, and said it was too bad city public works officials weren't at the meeting to explain the major significance of the Hancock Heights project.

Black, at that point, said he knows all the details of that project and resented the suggestion that he didn't.

As tempers flared further, Mayor Favre gathered up his papers and left the meeting. Black was out of the door shortly afterwards, motioning to Rutherford, council vice president, to take the chair. He did, and called for a motion to adjourn.

Wednesday, Black said he's been in favor of the Hancock Heights project for three years and still favors it. In fact, he said, he was ready to vote for it Tuesday night, once he saw that it could be financed without cutting paving projects from the budget.

"But I wasn't going to sit there and be abused by councilman Scianna ... He accused me of not knowing what's going on."

Black said despite Tuesday night's rift, the Hancock Heights project is going to materialize. And, he said, he has assurances that drainage relief for Spanish Acres, in his district, will be the next project off the drawing board.

Black said the proposed city bond issue most likely would necessitate a four-to-eight mill tax hike, increasing taxes on a $100,000 home by some $70 a year.

The city cut 28 mills from property tax bills several years ago with the new influx of gaming revenues from Casino Magic. But those revenues to city coffers have dipped substantially in recent months -- falling from a level of about $300,000 a month to $130,000 per month currently.

Black said he would not favor a tax increase for the bond issue unless the city first tried to finance its needs by cutting some non-essential projects from the budget, leaving only the necessities in place.

He also said he may suggest public hearings be set in each city ward, to air details of the proposed bond issue.

Council authorized the mayor Tuesday night to negotiate for services of a bond attorney.

Renovate

whether to remodel a 4,000-square foot building that was a former convenience store into new offices for the school district.

The previous board bought the one-acre site and building at Mississippi Hwys. 603 and 43 from Margie H. Larsen and Eric Larsen last August for $85,000, and advertised for contractors interested in renovating it.

They set aside $40,000 for the renovation in this year's fiscal budget, but the lowest bid-by Moran Hauling Inc. of Picayune--totaled $119,900, when it was opened Dec. 15. The previous board took the bids under advisement, leaving it up to the new supervisors to decide whether to proceed.

The contractor extended his bid past a Feb. 13 deadline while new supervisors spoke with project architect Michael Reeves and others to see if the county might find a way to cut costs, but apparently decided to bite the bullet and go ahead with the project, making an amendment to this year's budget.

Before voting 5-0 to amend the budget, and accept Moran Hauling's low bid, Board President Philip Moran asked Cheryl Bennett, president of the Hancock County School Board, how she felt about the building.

"The location was not our first choice," said Bennett. She said the board would have preferred locating administrative offices on land included in the new Hancock High School complex off Stennis/Airport Drive.

Pressed by Moran, she said, the new offices would "satisfy us, but for how long, I don't know."

Bennett said the new facility would double the 2,000 square feet it now occupies at a building it leases on Hwy. 90, but the school district's enrollment is growing, with 300 more students enrolled in county school this year, compared to last year.

Moran said, under terms of the contract, Moran Hauling has proposed to complete the renovations within five months, which means the district would have new offices before the start of the school year next September.

"It's a step in the right direction," Bennett said.

Locating the Juvenile Detention Center downtown was not a "done deal." Supervisors broke from a workshop session in mid-March to tour the old post office building at the corner of Main and Federal Streets with the idea of converting the basement to house juveniles, and provide some needed space for county courts.

Most knew there might be some objections because the solid yellow brick structure is located next to the First Baptist Church, but supervisors apparently underestimated the extent of the protest.

Sheriff Peterson had told supervisors the building would be "ideal" because it would be in close proximity to the courts and close enough to run food for the juveniles from the nearby county jail.

When supervisors started taking some heat about even considering the building, Peterson came to their defense.

"I suggested we look at it," said Peterson. "I admire this board for tackling issues that haven't been addressed by the previous board."

"I don't care where we build it. But, we're in dire need of a building. We need it right away," he said.

Peterson was apparently referring to a June deadline given supervisors by the state's Division of Public Safety.

That agency awarded a grant of $111,000 to Hancock County last August to begin efforts to build a portable or permanent Juvenile Detention Center. If the county doesn't show some progress, it might be asked to return the funds.

Presently, most juveniles arrested in Hancock County are released back to their parents, and only in extreme cases, are they sent to a detention center in Poplarville.

The grant monies have been invested, and now totals nearly $112,000, but locating a site for the center was another problem passed on to new supervisors.

The old board said, even if they had a site, the county didn't have the funds to operate such a facility, which would require a 24-hour staff, seven days a week.

But, Peterson has told supervisors that the operating costs of the facility could be offset if it is large enough for him to house juveniles being held for the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service. The federal government would pay the county between $100 and $125 a day per prisoner, he said.

Those who came to ask supervisors to back off of the old post office site presented a petition signed by about 90 citizens.

Dave Zeitfuss, representing the Old Town Business Association, told supervisors in their rush to use the grant money, "you might meet the deadline and ruin the town."

And, Mike Necaise, who said he attended First Baptist Church, but did not speak on its behalf, said, he was "not in favor of the location" because it would "cause a lot of traffic and congestion."

Necaise said, however, he was "100 percent for the rehabilitation of juveniles."

Another resident of 109 S. Toulme downtown said, "We don't want it in a residential area, not in our bedrooms. It's not the proper place."

Some citizens suggested forming a committee to scout out additional possible sites for the juvenile detention center, but Moran said supervisors will continue looking themselves.

Other sites mentioned are the vacant county Health Department building on Dunbar Avenue, the annex at the county courthouse, which was the old county jail, and the McDonald office building on Hwy. 90.

Supervisors were quick to caution the Food Pantry, the Civil Defense and others now operating out of the courthouse annex, that a move was not imminent. They said the site was only one of several being considered.

Later in the meeting, Moran asked Jeff Loftus, the planner with the Gulf Regional Planning Commission who helped obtain the grant for the detention center, to inform the state Division of Public Safety on the latest efforts to obtain a site.

Moran received a letter dated March 22 from Anthony Gobar Sr., the division's Juvenile Program Manager.

Gobar said, in accepting the grant money, "the Board agreed to initiate the project within 60 days and to submit quarterly progress reports at the end of each calendar quarter. To date, we have not received any reports from Hancock County," said Gobar.

He asked Moran to submit a status report on the proposed facility by April 8.

Gobar said the report should include what steps have been taken to initiate the project; reasons for delay; corrective actions; and the expected starting date.

Children participate in 'Love a Book Month'

The faculty and students of Waveland Elementary devoted the month of February to children's literature. The purpose of "Love A Book Month" was to encourage children to read more.

On February 16, the faculty and students dressed as their favorite book characters. Amelia Bedelia, Raggedy Ann and Andy, Laura Ingalls, Ramona the Pest, Dorothy from The Wizard of Oz and many more characters roamed the halls of the school. The day ended with teachers exchanging classes to read their favorite books to other students.

On February 22, the students were treated to the storytelling wit of Chris Vinsonhaler. Ms. Vinsonhaler played the guitar, sang and told many humorous stories to the students. She encouraged the students to visit the library often and read, read, read!

On February 27, everyone was invited to school at night to "Snuggle With a Book". The teachers, students and even some parents came dressed in their pajamas ready to read bedtime stories. The students were treated to milk and cookies as the teachers read to them. After the parents viewed an excerpt from Jim Trelease's video, "Reading Aloud to Your Children", the parents joined the fun and read with their children.

The children also completed their "Book It" program. The "Book It" program is sponsored by Pizza Hut. Children set reading goals and are given certificates for free pizza if their goals are met.

Rocks down Blue Devils 15-2

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaw baseball team split two games over the weekend. On March 29 the Rocks rocked the Pearl River Central Blue Devils 15-2 for a victory in Division 7 Class 4A.

On Saturday, the Rocks lost to Jonesboro of Georgia 6-3 at C. J. Pete Taylor Park in Hattiesburg on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi. Against PRC, Jimmy Smith got the win for the Rocks and upped his record to 5-0. The Rocks scored 10 runs in the fourth inning to force the game to the ten-run rule. Eric Knight tallied three hits for the Rocks while Corey Gex and Chris Davis each had two hits. Eric Knight, Dennis Knight, Davis, and Gex all had doubles for SSC. E. Knight, David Manasco, and Gex all had three RBI for SSC while Smith and D. Knight had one RBI for the Rocks.

On March 30 against Jonesboro, the Georgia team scored four runs in the third inning to make the difference. Casey Swanson took the loss for the Rocks on the mound dropping his record to 0-2. David Manasco had two hits for the Rocks while Jeremy Paenton and Dennis Knight each had a double. Knight tallied two RBI for the Rocks. SSC is now 9-9 on the season and 3-4 in the division.

Magnolia Federal sponsors tourney

Magnolia Federal Bank is sponsoring its first annual Charity Golf Tournament Saturday, April 27, at the Edgewater Bay Golf Course. The charity for 1996 is the Roger Poulos Memorial Scholarship Fund at the University of Southern Mississippi. Registration and check-in will begin at 7 a.m. Tee-off is at 8 a.m. Food, beverages and a t-shirt will be provided on the course during the tournament. The tournament is a four-man best ball event, and is limited to 27 teams. First place low-net will receive $400 cash; second place receives $200; third place receives four free golf passes. The cost per team is $260 ($65 per team member). Individual entries also are welcome; cost is $75 each. Individuals and businesses may enter a team, sponsor a hole (cost is $100 per hole), donate a prize, or volunteer to help grill hotdogs, serve drinks or be a judge for the prize giveaways. In case of rain, the tournament will be rescheduled. For more information, call Amy Collins at the Gulfport office of Magnolia Federal Bank, 867-5412.

New fitness programs require gradual approach

By Gary Smith

Be sensible when beginning a new fitness program. Sounds easy? Not necessarily. With the onset of each new year, many people are overly anxious to lose those holiday pounds, firm up and become more healthy.

These desirable goals take time to achieve and require a slow, gradual approach. The individual who begins training with too much effort can be overcome with fatigue and sore-ness, possibly becoming discouraged and giving up.

The following recommendations should help to limit initial effort while maintaining enthusiasm. Various fitness pursuits are listed:

- Cardiovascular activities such as jogging, power walking, swimming or bicycling should begin with short, easy distances for the first few weeks before increasing to a working level.

The rule is to accelerate the heart gradually.

- Exercise classes, such as aerobics should be started at low-impact levels, even if more strenuous levels have been attained in the distant past.

- Stretching exercise, including yoga should also be approached carefully, allowing gradual progress toward achieving fully stretched positions, even if several sessions are necessary to establish flexibility.

- Weight training with machines or free weights should begin with light weights for easy repetitions. (A repetition is one complete movement of an exercise).

For example, start with two sets of 12 repetitions for each different exercise. After a couple of weeks, add another set to each exercise, then slowly increase the weight with time.

Keep your program simple by selecting one basic exercise for each muscle group.

- Diet programs are more permanent when the shift to nutritious foods such as vegetables, fruit and whole grain products is gradually phased in, while consumption of high fat, high sugar foods and reduced toward elimination.

A new fitness program is exciting, but requires patience and careful planning.

Goals should be realistic and allow more time than estimated for achievement. Be prepared to make fitness a lifestyle for success, and it shall soon become an enjoyable, rewarding activity.

Diamondhead Golf News

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Diamondhead Ladies Golf Association held a Trophy Day format on March 14.

The over the field winner was Cleo Watson.

In the first flight, Sylvia Cordon took top honors while Pauline Haas, Helen Manley, Theresa Blackledge, and Bonnie Rolfs finished second, third, and fourth, respectively.

The second flight had Darlene Ray finishing first and Peggy Turner placing runner-up. Ann Miller took third while Pat Brandenburg, Carol Begley, Carol Guilmino, and Billie Crowley tied for fourth.

The third flight had Vi Kirk winning and Sam Parkin taking second. Jan Masimore took third place and Leslie White, Terri Rankin, and Cal Rogers tied for fourth.

In the fourth flight Nettie Dean took first while Jo Ann Smith Nueva Sears tied for second. Jean Haag placed third.

On March 21, the Diamondhead Ladies Golf Association held a Points Tournament.

In the first flight, Ann Miller took top honors while Mitzi Lentz, Pauline Haas, and Peggy Knapp finished second, third, and fourth.

In the second flight, E.J. Smith and Nueva Sears tied for first. Jan Masimore placed second while Carolyn Koerner and Betty Juncker placed third and fourth, respectively.

On March 28, the Diamondhead Ladies Golf Association held an ABCD scramble. There was a three-way tie for first place with the teams.

The teams were Mamie Calmes, Margaret Hill, Mitzi Lentz, Betty Juncker, and Marilyn Valentino on the first team.

The second team was made up of Phyllis Lilley, Becky Stritzel, D. Kim, and Iona Decker.

The third team was Joann Hoekstra, Til Garrison, Jan Massimore, Sue Hebert, and Nueva Sears.

Talented youth sought

Prospective applicants are being sought for the 1996 Summer Program for Academically Talented Youth at the University of Southern Mississippi.

April 30 is the deadline for applications to the program offered by USM's Center for Gifted Studies.

The residential program, scheduled July 7-26, is designed for students in grades 7-10 who qualify based on results of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Test (ACT).

A variety of intensive, fast-paced courses will be offered including pre-calculus mathematics, statistics and probability, biology, physics, human anatomy and physiology, marine biology, ecology, psychology, geography, creative writing, and Southern writers and literature.

The program is affiliated with the Duke University Talent Identification Program.

Tuition for the three-week program is $995 and includes books, room and board, recreational activities and limited accident insurance. Limited financial aid is available.

For information, contact the USM Center for Gifted Studies at (601) 266-5236.

Tigers gain big win over Oak Grove

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

The Bay High Tiger baseball team gained a huge win in District 7 Class 4A competition on March 29. The Tigers downed the Oak Grove Warriors 4-2 to move back into playoff contention.

Behind the pitching of Wali Shabazz, the Tigers scattered just two hits by Oak Grove. Shabazz struck out ten batter from the mound while upping his record to 5-4.

Donnie Bridges took the loss for the Warriors.

Shabazz also had two hits in the game including a double. Casey Weems, Jonathan Favre, and Ray Ramsey each had an RBI for the Tigers.

With the win, the Tigers improve to 10-6 on the season and 4-3 in the division.

USM adds endowment

Dr. Aubrey K. Lucas, president of the University of Southern Mississippi, and Athletic Director Bill McLellan announced the establishment of the Paul Sala Athletic Scholarship Endowment, the latest in a growing list of such endowments.

The Sala Endowment, totaling over $52,000 to date, was made possible through the generosity of the family and friends of longtime Southern Miss fan and contributor Paul Sala who died Sept. 23, 1995 in Baton Rouge following a lengthy illness.

"Some of Paul's greatest thrills in life were watching Southern Miss athletic events," said longtime friend and fellow USM supporter Aubrey Collum. "He was a very loyal friend of the university and deserves to have a scholarship named in his honor."

Sala knew early in life that he wanted to attend Southern Miss. He had attended grade school at the Demonstration School and played on the campus during recess. His mother worked in the business office at the university while his father started one of the first State Farm agencies in Mississippi.

Even though his family relocated twice, first to Tulsa, Okla., and then to Baton Rouge, Sala managed to make his way back to Southern Miss.

After graduating with a bachelor of science degree in 1972, Sala began a 23-year career with State Farm Insurance while at the same time turning his alumni experience into an opportunity to serve his alma mater.

In addition to being active in many Gulf Coast events, Sala served the University in several leadership roles, including a term on the Eagle Club Fund-Raising Advisory Committee, on the board of directors for the USM Alumni Association and as a member of the Honor Club Committee for the USM Foundation.

In addition, he was a driving force behind the effort to bring the Metro Conference Basketball Tournament to the Mississippi Gulf Coast. For all his hard work and dedication, Sala received the Outstanding Service Award in 1987.

Contributions continue to be accepted to this latest addition to a growing number of Golden Eagle scholarship endowments, and can be made by mail to: The Paul Sala Scholarship Fund, c/o USM Foundation, Box 10026, Hattiesburg, MS 39406.

Additional information may be obtained from Associate Athletic Director Bobby Collins by calling 601/266-5299.

Endowment scholarship funds now total over $600,000. "We have made progress in this critical area in recent years," said Collins.

"Support in this form benefits the university and in particular the athletic department long past the lifespan of the persons making the contribution."

TAKE ANOTHER ASPIRIN & IGNORE THE OBVIOUS.

Headache pain is often a warning signal to the body that something is wrong. Yet, often when we get rid of the pain, we're ignoring the problem behind it.

There are many causes of headaches. One of the most frequent is misalignment of one or more of the small spinal bones in the neck. When these CERVICAL VERTEBRAE are displaced, the nerves between them are affected. Headaches of all kinds may result, migraines, pain at the base of the skull, behind the eyes or the forehead.

Our doctors at Hoda Chiropractic Clinics are experienced in treating headaches of this kind, can restore cervical vertebrae to their proper positions, thus halting the painful nerve interference which causes some headaches.

When you have a headache, see Dr. Desmond Hoda.

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

Hancock County, Mississippi, is considering applying to the Department of Economic and Community Development for a Community Development Block Grant of up to $500,000.00. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately $39 million that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

- 1] To benefit low and moderate-income persons;
- 2] To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or
- 3] To meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or welfare of the community where other financial resources are not available to meet such needs.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, public facilities and economic development. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at Hancock County Courthouse, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi on Tuesday, April 23, 1996 at 6:00 P.M. The purpose of this hearing will be to obtain citizen input into the development of the application.

New fishing regulations

New Fishing regulations go into effect soon on many public waters across Mississippi, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

Beginning April 3, new length limits will apply to various fish in certain public waters. Minimum length limits prohibit the harvest of fish under or equal to a specific length, according to fisheries scientists.

"These length limits are designed to keep fish in the lake to help improve the spawning stock and rebuild depleted populations," Fisheries Biologist Dennis Riecke of Jackson said.

Riecke said length limits differ among lakes since each body of water contains a different population structure of the various fishes.

"The goal of each length limit is to reduce the harvest of certain sizes of fish and improve population structure of fish stocks," Riecke said.

Minimum length limits protect fish equal to or under a certain size. Small fish are protected when spawning or survival of small fish is low.

Slot length limits prohibit harvesting fish on or between the designated sizes and are designed to encourage harvesting fish less than or greater than the slot size.

By encouraging the harvest of small fish, overall growth should increase and provide a movement through the slot size range. The desired result will be more fish greater than and within the slot size range.

Anglers fishing the following lakes with slot length limits should harvest fish less than the slot size range to help reduce crowding of these fish.

Smallmouth Bass
A 14-inch minimum length limit with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit at Pickwick Lake in northeast Mississippi and Bay Springs Lake northeast of Tupelo. This includes all waters from Bay Springs Lock and Dam upstream to the U.S. 25 Bridge.

All Black Basses
Largemouth & Spotted

Bass)
Bogue Homa State Fishing Lake in Jones County, Tom Bailey State Fishing Lake in Lauderdale County, Lake Bolivar near Scott, and Bear Lake in Quitman County have a 15-inch minimum length limit with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit.

Lake Washington southwest of Hollandale also has a 15-inch minimum length limit but only a five-fish per person daily creel limit.

Moon Lake, including the area east of Hwy. 1, has a 15-inch minimum length limit with a two-fish per person daily creel limit.

Eagle Lake north of Vicksburg has a 14-inch minimum length limit with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit.

Atchafalaya Bayou and Little Eagle Lake, both in Humphreys County, have a 20-inch minimum length limit with a two-fish per person daily creel limit.

Harvest of black bass at Leroy Percy State Park Lake west of Hollandale is not allowed.

Holmes County State Park Lake, Okatibbee Reservoir north of Meridian, Bay Springs Lake northeast of Tupelo, Percy Quinn State Park Lake southwest of McComb, and Kemper County State Fishing Lake have a 14-18 inch slot length limit with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit.

Mike Conner State fishing Lake in Covington County and Clarke State Park Lake in Clarke County also have a 14-18 inch slot with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit. Only one fish can be greater than 18 inches.

Bill Waller State Fishing Lake in Marion County and Natchez State Park Lake in Adams County have a 14-18 inch slot length limit with a seven-fish per person daily creel limit. Only one fish can be greater than 18 inches.

Arkabutla, Enid, Grenada and Sardis reservoirs in northern Mississippi have a 14-18 inch slot length limit with a seven-fish per person daily creel limit, but only three fish can be greater than 18 inches.

Paul B. Johnson State Park Lake in Forrest County has a 18-22 inch slot length limit with a 10-fish per person daily creel limit, but only one fish can be greater than 22 inches.

Ross Barnett Reservoir north of Jackson has a 13-16-inch slot length limit from March 1 to June 30 each year with a seven-fish per person daily creel limit.

Crappie
Arkabutla, Enid, Grenada, Okatibbee and Sardis reservoirs have a 10-inch minimum length limit with a 30-fish per person daily creel limit.

All waters of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway from U.S. 25 to Aliceville Lock and Dam have a nine-inch minimum length limit with a 30-fish per person daily creel limit.

Bluegill
Clarkco and Leroy Percy State Park Fishing Lakes have a 25-fish per person daily creel limit.

Flathead Catfish
Statewide, except in border waters, anglers may keep no more than two flathead catfish with sport or hand grabbing gear under 25 inches with a daily creel limit of five from May 1 to July 15.

Daily creel limits per person for waters not specified above are:

* Striped bass and Hybrid Striped bass (15 inches minimum length) — three.

* Walleye — three, only in Bay Springs Lake, Pickwick Lake and the Divide Section of the Tenn-Tom Waterway. All other waters are closed to walleye harvest.

* Sauger — 15.
* Black Bass — 10.
* White and Yellow Bass — 50.

* Bluegill, bream and all other sunfish — 100.

Crappie — 30, except that the crappie daily creel limit in waters adjoining adjacent states shall be the same as the adjacent states or the Mississippi limit, whichever is greater.

Mississippi fishing information may be obtained each week by calling 1-800-ASK-FISH. Fishing regulation wallet cards will be available at all MDWFP offices in early April.

NMFS proposes new TED regulations

Sea turtle strandings continue to exceed established incidental take levels in spite of widespread TED use and compliance in the Gulf and South Atlantic shrimp fishery.

To address this issue, the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) is currently conducting informal workshops throughout the region regarding a series of new TED regulations slated to be put forth in late March. The new regulations would:

1. Establish a Gulf Shrimp

Fishery Sea Turtle Conservation Zone (SFSTCZ) from the beach out to ten nautical miles from Mississippi South Pass to the Rio Grande River.

2. Establish an Atlantic SFSTCZ from the beach out to 10 nautical miles off the states of Georgia and South Carolina.

3. Eliminate soft TED's as approved TED design to be effective when rules are passed in the SFSTCZ and for everywhere else by Dec. 31, 1996.

4. Reduce size of try nets exempt from TED's down to 12 foot corkline and 15 foot headline.

5. Restrict use of bottom opening hard TED's in the SFSTCZ but bottom shooters could be used elsewhere.

6. Reduce heavy shrimp trawling off Texas by establishing a zone from the beach out to 10 nautical miles that three weeks before the Texas closure and three weeks after the Texas closure only vessels less than 60 feet can shrimp and they cannot use more than 100 foot combined headrope in their trawling efforts.

Get boat ready for spring

The boating season is beginning in many parts of the country with spring commissioning chores that can make the rest of the season more enjoyable — and safer. Here's a handy checklist from 510,000-member Boat/U.S. (Boat Owners Association of The United States), the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

— Check the expiration dates on safety gear such as flares and fire extinguishers.

— Make sure navigational charts and guides are current. Channel markers, buoys and landmarks change.

— Check all lights on the boat and trailer.

— Review your boat insurance policy and update coverages if needed.

— Check the first aid kit and tool kit and add fresh supplies.

— Check to see that thru-hull fittings below the water line are right and free of cracks and that sea valves operate freely.

— Sail boat owners should check the rigging for cracked or over-stressed fittings and chainplate mountings and leaks where chainplates come through the deck.

— Engine or drive oil hat looks brown or gray has water in it, and a mechanic should be called in to find the source before you start the engine.

— Inspect non-metallic thru-hulls on bilge pumps, sink and deck drains. They get brittle with age and winter ice and can crack or loosen them. Look for hoses that have been forced off or split from freezing. Every spring, boats sink at the dock when these problems go undetected until the first heavy rain.

— Get fresh batteries for flashlights, hand-held radios and other portable electronic gear.

— If your boat is less than 16 feet, make sure you have a wearable life jacket on board for each passenger. A throwable cushion or ring no longer meets Coast Guard requirements.
